THE ATTITUDE OF DEMOCRATIC PARTY LEADERS TOWARDS GOV. HILL.

Camping on the County Democracy Res-

The talk of organizing clubs in every city and town in this State to boom the renominamon and excitement among the local evinced in regard to the exact attitude of the Washington and their backs towards Albany. They are Democrats who admire President Gleveland and his Administration more than than they do Gov. Hill and his Administrathan they do Gov. Hill and his Administration.

Admitting, therefore, that the friends of the National Administration have control of the machine in the State—for a State Committee is a machine and a powerful one at that—the question is, Will it be used to prerent the renomination of Gov. Hill?

When this political conundrum was put to a shaggy-bearded Jacksonian who was a delegate to the Academy of Music convention from a backwoods county, he replied:

delegate to the Academy of Music convention from a backwoods county, he replied:
"If President Cleveland wasta Hill renominated Hill will be renominated, and I do not know a man who should want Hill renominated more than Cleveland. If the President or that little fellow Lamont, or even Big Bissell, don't put the brakes on the machine, muzzle the office-holders and corral the County Democracy chaps who are shouting against Hill, there's going to be a monkey and parrot time of it in this State. I do not believe that the President wishes to interfere, lut I do believe that he wishes Gov. Hill renommated.

"The Cleveland men in the country are all Hill men. The Cleveland men in New York City are not all Hill men. The New York politicians seem to hate Hill more than they love Cleveland. They would prefer to defeat Hill's renomination and to run the risk of defeating Cleveland rather than renominate and elect both. That is personal politics, and one of the machines in this city is app sided, big-headed and tender-footed with it.

"I do not favor the organizing of Hill clubs. I do not believe Gov. Hill favors it. If I am not mestaken in my man I believe Gov. Hill favors it. If I am not mestaken in my man I believe Gov. Hill has already decided—and since the State Convention, too—not to seek or accept a renomination. I will bet a big red apple that before two months come and go the friends of the President will be begging Hill to accept a renomination, and if I am not wrong they will have a hard time persuading him." Would Hill poll more Democratic votes in your county than Cleveland?"

Yes.'' Would Cleveland poll more Independent and Republican votes in your county than Hill?"

rainy day."
"Suppose Hill is not renominated?"
"Cleveland and his triends will be blamed for it, and the red-hot Democrats will say that Hill was Folgered, and may remain at home with the old woman on election day."
"How about the tariff?"
"Our county or way remain. The pen-

"How about the tariff?"

"Our county grows peppermint. The peppermint growers and their help, and there are over two thousands of them, are opposed to the Mills bill. It reduces the duty on the essence of peppermint oil."

"How about the next county to yours?"

"It is a no good peppermint county. The people in that county are crying for the Mills bill. They could buy peppermint cheaper than they can now, although it runs riot next door to them. There is a big peppermint monopoly wall all around our county, and a man whose potato farm runs against it has to pay just as much for his peppermini oil as the man who unloads the foreign oil at San Francisco.

oil as the man who unloads the foreign oil at San Fraucisco.

"But you have side-tracked me. Look across the corridor. There's Willard Johnson, of Oswego. He says Cleveland will be hurt very badly in that county if Hill is not nominated. He told me he could not understand what the New York City Democrats were driving at. I told him they didn't know themselves, and he said he guessed they didn't."

The next talk was with a local politician on the platforms. Remember the fight we made for Hill's nomination in 1885 against the County Democracy people. What has the Governor done to justify Tammany Hall opposing him? Is it because he vetoed the Half Holiday Repeal bill and the High License bill? or is it because a knyor Grace is intriguing with our leaders? I cannot believe that Tammany Hall will oppose Gov. Hill. I do not think there is any significance in our delegates supporting Roswell P. Flower, for delegate-at-large to St. Louis in preference to Gov. Hill. because I understand that Tammany Hall was not asked to support Gov. Hill and that Gov. Hill did not seek the honor."

Col. John F. Gaynor, of Syracuse, said to an Evenisca Wonld reporter: "There will be a dozen Hill clubs formed in Onondaga County before another week. If any opposition should be made to his renomination he will be reneminated without the votes of New York County."

A local political student was heard to say: "Tammany Hall is playing a big game in politics, and the old organization will be for Hill when the time comes. The leaders do not wish Tammany Hall placed in the position of being a Hill machine. The more Tammany Hall leans toward the National Administration, and the stronger it indorzes President Cleveland, the weaker becomes the County Democracy as the Administration organization in this city.

"Tammany Hall is now considered to represent the National Administration as much as the County Democracy as the Administration as much as the County Democracy as the Administration as regular. The delegates will not this time kick against the unit rule. The County Democracy as the National Administration as regular. The delegates will not this time kick against the unit rule. The County Democracy was tragent of the Person the National Convention as regular. The delegates will not this time kick against the unit rule. The County Democracy was tragent to fight Tammany Hall. When there is no fight and Tammany Hall is camping on the County Democracy reservation, the County Democracy reservation, the County Democracy might as well stack arms. 'Yes, sir, Tammany Hall is playing a smart game. By catching on to Cleveland in time and going the whole reform business and making people believe she is against or at least not tied to Hill, she is driving the counties to the wall. Why, the Democrats of Alabama, Texas and Arkansas will swap tobacco with Tammanyites at St. Louis and will even invite them to have fire-water. In 1876, 1880 and 1834 the Southern Democrats pulled their slouched hats over their eyes when they saw a Tammany Hall badge.

"Then there is another thing I have thought of. Gov. Hill has the new Ballot Law before him. Perhaps the machines want him to veto it, and are on the bluff. If that bill is signed, good-by to the machines in this city. What good would machines be if the ballots are printed by the city, handed to an election officer, and the elector is compelled to go into a box all by himself and select a ticket and vote it without going outside of the polling place?

"If an election district captain hires 100

select a ticket and vote it without going outside of the polling place?

"If an election district captain hires 100
'workers' at $5 or $10 apiece he will not know if the 'workers' voted a' straight' or a' crooked' ticket. Election district captains will lose their occupation if the Ballot bill is signed. The machine's influence will be broken up."

The County Democracy organization will be considerably weakened by Tammany Hall being recognized as an Administration organi-zation. If Tammany Hall had covered the re-treat of the Hill people from the Presidential treat of the Hill people from the Presidential nomination battle, the County Democracy flag would be waving over the Administration forces and the C. D. a would be playing the Tammany Hall did not permit itself to be delivered to the Administration. It delivered itself and is getting more credit and "regularity" than the Counties.

Many politicians say that the Wigwamites will allow the County Democracy to run against the anti-Hill snag, but keep clear of the snag itself.

On the records in the Coroners' office the victim of Saturday's murder in Mulberry street still figures as "unknown," and Morgue-keeper White's book conveys and more definite information regarding her identity.

Notwithstanding this apparent mystery the mutilated corpse was recognized and identified on Saturday, when it was removed from the filthy cellar. The murdered woman was known in "The Beud" as Nellie Emith, but her real name was Minn e Mokowitz. She was a young married woman of Philadelphia, who had been estranged from her family by reason of her dissolute habits and had, from respectability, descended to the deepest depths of degredation. The young man who identified her remains is in the custody of Detectives Chrystal and Smrth, of the Elizabeth street police.

Vincenzo Di Cantio, the ragpicker, who was last seen with the dead woman, at 12.30 on Saturday morning, by Maria Calusio, one of the dwellers in the seething tenementhouse, in the cellar of which the body was found, is still at large, and the officers are meeting with great difficulty in his bursuit. If his victim had been an Italian they would have had comparatively little difficulty, but as it is, every one of his countrymen is attempting to shield the fugitive and each pretends to be entirely ignorant of anything that would assist the detectives in their hunt.

Maria Calusio is the only exception, and Maria Calusio is the only exception, and Maria Calusio is the only exception, and the information was obtained from her that she heard a woman's scream in the lower hall and ran down and asked Di Cantio what he had done "with that woman." With an oath the ugly ragpicker told her to mind her business or he would serve her after a similar fashion. All of this information had been previously obtained from Vincenzo Di Vito, brother of the landlord at No. 81, who was arrested because of the suspicious interest he seemed to take in the movements of the detectives Saturday.

in the movements of the detectives Saturday.

At 2 o'clock this morning Detectives Chrystal and Smith made another arrest, the prisoner being an Italian named Grovanni Nelli. They had continued their watch on the Mulberry street tenement with an idea that the murderer might still be hiding there, and at 11.30 last night, as Detective Smith was passing along the street a short, stout man, who looked like an Irishman, stepped up to him, placed a piece of paper in his hand and walked rapidly away.

The paper was a fly-leaf of a book on which was written a few lines stating that the writer had overheard the housekeeper at No. 79 tell another woman that Di Cantio was concealed in a room in the rear tenement of 81.

Detective Smith hurried to the stationhouse and got ten patrolmen, who surrounded the house, which was searched thoroughly, but Di Cantio was not found.

While they were there Nelli came to the house and announced that he had come from Di Cantio's for a parcel. A woman, who met him at the door of Di Cantio's room, told him to hurry away as the policemen were around.

QUINN'S ACTION DENOUNCED.

MEMBERS OF 49 DISGUSTED WITH THE PRESENT STATE OF AFFAIRS.

They May That Quinn Was in a Minerity of penents-The Merting Could Have Gone

The chief topic of conversation this morning among workingmen was District Assembly No. 49's meeting yesterday, which was one of the most extraordinary and unpreceings subsequent to the withdrawal of Master Workman Jomes E. Quinn with the charter in his possession is said to have been extremely turbulent and almost fraught with the disruption of the organization.

statement of the case concerning the action of the District Court in suspending Master Workman Quinn, Timothy Quinn and P. C. McGuire, sr., from Local Assembly No. 2,234, or the Americus Labor Club, for alleged vioings of the Court were regular and in strict accordance with the laws of the order. There is no dodging the judgment of the District Court by lawful means, but Quinn and his friends have resorted to questionable means and are making a desperate struggle to maintain their positions and the control which they have beld so long. But, I tell you, they will have to submit to the inevitable."

A reliable authority on the laws of the Knights said: "The meeting of yesterday could have been continued after a delay of fifteen minutes—time enough to obtain the seals of five local assemblies. These seals could have been put in place of the charter carried away by Master Workman Quinn, and the Worthy Foreman could have conducted the proceedings lawfully under them.

"But it was deemed best to postpone further action until next Sunday, when we will go on with the work in the way I have described, unless the Master Workman appears with the charter.

trouble and ultimate disruption would result."

Timothy Quinn was seen by an Evening World Preporter to-day. He positively declined to make any statement, saying that it was not necessary for the press and the public to know what had occurred; and that the local assemblies would be made acquainted with the facts in due time.

Friends of Master Workman Quinn who were approached on the subject, also declined to give any statement from their side, merely saying that the Master Workman knew the law and his prerogatives in the premises, and that he took the right vested in him to abruptly close the meeting yesterday because the delegates became noisy and turbulent and obstructed the work of the Assembly.

A delegate of the Central Labor Union chuckled over the affair of yesterday in No. 49 and said: "This is meat for John Morrison and the opponents of the Quinns, McGuire, Kearney and others who have clung te them.

session, the question of raising the boycott on pool beer. This proposition, first announced in The Eventro World, was urged strongly, so it is said, by leading delegates, but, in spite of the fact that semi-official assurances were given that all the locked-out brewerymen would be taken back if the boycott were raised, and also of the fact that the Brooklyn Central Labor Union had raised the boycott, the matter was finally left as it was. One delegate put in thus; "We have resolved to continue to recommend everybody to drink union beer. We don't say 'boycott pool beer."

Another important matter was the renewal of the discussion of the question of the mutual recognition of cards by the Knights of Labor and the union men laid, over from last Sunday. The proposition was voted down by laying it on the table by 40 to 24.

morning from a fourth-story window of Grammar School 45 at 225 West Twentyfourth street, indicating that something unusual was going on within. The Board of Trustees were presenting to the pupils two flags, the object being to foster in them principles of patriotism and loyalty to the Union. More than seven hundred girls, ranging from six to fifteen years in age, were in the large, airy school-room, clothed in pretty dresses of many colors and ornamented by red, white and blue ribbons and little flags. The walls were nearly hidden from view by a profusion of the stars and stripes arranged in a tasteful manner.

A pleasing programme was admirably carried out. Minnie Levy recited "Britannia and Her Boy Sam," Miriem Coleman recited "Pride of Battery B," and Talena Dombsky recited "Music in Camp."

These recitations were interspersed with "My Country, "Tis of Thee," "The Red, White and Blue" and the chorus, "The Old Thirteen," in which the sweet voices of the children blended harmoniously.

Then Peter Macdonald, Chairman of the Board of Trustees presented two handsome flags to the school in behalf of the Board, making a fitting speech.

Miss Susie Oakley gracefully accepted the flags, saving that the red on the flags would ever remind the girls that their country was purchased by the blood of patriots, the white that purity was essential to its preservation and the blue that they must ever be true and loyal.

to the District-Attorney's office this morning with an urgent request that prompt action be taken on them. On Wednesday the witnesses in the case will attend before the Grand Jury and the case will be presented by one of Col. Fellows's assistants.

The facts as to the finding of Broker Nat Hatch's body in the yard of the Scofield house on Tuesday, May, will be briefly retold, and Mme. Fanny, Policeman McCormick, D. C. Ferris, Lillian Scofield and others will repeat the story of the events of the day and night preceding the tragedy.

There, it is generally believed, the case will end. Judge Lawrence's order for the release of Mrs. Scofield, made on Friday with the consent of the District-Attorney, was an indication that in the epinion of the public prosecutor no crime has been committed, and that the Grand Jury will not be aske to indict.

Assistant District-Attorney Lindsay, who has charge of the case, said to day that the matter would go before the Grand Jury as a more formality, so as to clear up the record.

The parties whose names have been so prominent in the case have developed an intense desire for privacy and seclusion. Mrs. Lil ian Scofield is staying with friends at 1420 Broadway, but her servant is instructed to tell all visitors that she is not there.

The unfortunate Mr. Scofield is boarding in West Eleventh street, between Fifth avenue and University place. D. C. Ferris has remained at his home, 277 West Seventy-first street, since Friday. He is out on bail, but his lawyer, Jerome Buck, will take to-day the same measures for his final release as were successfully taken by Delancy Nicoli on behalf of Mrs. Scofield.

his friends, and several old hands said that his double play was one of the prettiest seen on the Polo Grounds this season:

The Brooklyn boys struck out in one, two, three order in their half of the fifth, and their opponents failed to increase their score. It was entirely a game of pitchers, and a very prety game it was. The Brooklyn boys had only twice succeeded in cetting a man on first, and only once touched third base.

In the sixth unning the Brooklyn Workn men found the same old difficulty in hitting anywhere near the ball, and bit the dust, metaphorically speaking, in one, two, three style, O'Counor and Reilly both lifted the ball, but it fell each time into willing clutches, and O'Counor and Reilly both lifted the ball, but it fell each time into willing clutches, and when Lichtenstein struck out the side retired without a run.

The seventh inning was opened by Burns one of Brooklyn's heavy hitters, who sent a hot grounder to third. Herzer picked it up besutifully, and it was gracefully taken in by Davis at first.

Moran got his first on balls and went to second on a passed ball, and came in on Garritt's safe hit to right field, the first blood for Brooklyn. Excitential field. The first blood for Brooklyn. Excitential field. Garrity reached third on a passed ball by Smith and scored on a single bagger by

Although The Evening World's boys went in with a look of determination on their faces, they failed to add to their score in the later half of the inning. Smith and Davis struck out and Talbot was thrown out by Burns after a pretty stop of a hot grounder.

Game was called at the end of this inning, leaving the score a tie.

The I buyers and the Justice put their heads together as soon as Crier Billy Ricketts had proclaimed that all the people who had business with the Court might draw near, under assurances that they would be heard, and had stopped a dozen jurymen who had nocepted the invitation and sent them back to their seats crestfallen.

The result of the consultation was given by Mr. 1 ird, who said he had a life-long available of the life of the life of the sixth juror. Out of delexey he would suggest that Juror Minton be excused.

Col. Fellows readily agreed with Mr. Bird, and No. 5, blushing like a peony and trying to look happy, left the room, and—"the work of searching for jurors for the Korr trial was resumed this morning."

This turn of affairs had the same effect as an announcement to a theatre audience that owing to suiden filiness the star actress would be unable to appear in the cast. The old process was then resumed. There were some men on the panel who could afford to pay a $100 fine for delinquency if the Court got angry, and these did not take the trouble to appear in court at all. Among these was Washington E. Comnor.

After more than two hours of labor, in which the special panel was decimated, Sylvester J. O'Sullivan, a big, broad-shouldered sylesman of 96 Franklin street, and living at the Metropolitan Hotel, was given the sixth sent. The contesting lawyers expressed their satisfaction and the jury were sworn.

Justice Patterson will sit each day during the trial from 10 a. M. to 6 p. M., with an hour for luncheon. Col. Fellows thinks he will be able to close the people's testimony by Saturday.
